

This course examines the techniques used by media communicators to share meaning, influence and entertain mass audiences with sounds and images. The course will familiarize you with principles of media literacy focusing on the techniques used to communicate meaning, what are referred to as media aesthetics, and their communicative functions within the production of media, specifically film and television. We will examine and judge media critically from the perspective of an art and as a form of communications, not merely as entertainment. This course is a requirement in the Broadcast-Cinema Program.

Required Software and Movies.

- (1) Modern Web Browser. An up-to-date web browser is required to play streaming video. Any web browser should work but I recommend Firefox as students last semester said it more consistently played all the videos and did so smoother. Download at www.mozilla.org
- (2) Video clips are in .m4v format. Some browsers may not play this format out of the box and, if yours doesn't, install the latest version of Apple's Quicktime, <http://www.apple.com/quicktime>
- (3) Communications, Assignments and Office 365: Two versions of Microsoft Office used for course email, office documents including word processing with Microsoft Word, and cloud storage with One Drive at no cost to you. MS Office 365 is offered to you at no cost. To work with and set-up these applications go to <http://supportcenter.ct.edu/service/office365.asp>
 - (1) Email: Only your community college email address will be used and it's accessible through the Office 365 mail client in MyCommnet. You can forward received mail to your personal email. <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=IQxcuYjxQh8>. If you set up forwarding, be sure to check your junk mail folder to make sure the college emails are not ending up there.
 - (2) Word Processing Applications. If you do not have MS Office and wish to use the Office 365 version of Microsoft Word, follow the link <http://supportcenter.ct.edu/service/office365.asp>. This standard version is a cloud application meaning it needs Internet access to function. A full desktop version of Microsoft Office is also available that does not require the Internet and it's called Office 365 ProPlus available for PC and Macs. http://supportcenter.ct.edu/service/Office365/Office365_ProPlus.pdf. If you wish to use other software, please submit your papers in .doc, docx, .or rtf (rich text format)
- (4) Access to Movies. Students must have access to the films used in the course obtained from places like Netflix, Amazon, eBay, etc. You are responsible for obtaining these films PRIOR to the week in which they will be viewed. Here is a list of films with their viewing dates. You should have your movies in hand the week before they are due to watch. I also recommend that you watch them on a TV as opposed to a computer or mobile device as you'll need to see details within the shots that you wouldn't perceive watching on a computer screen or mobile device.

Course Requirements and Expectations

What makes good and effective media particularly film and video in both content (the message) and form (the style used to communicate the message)? That is the question that will be examined in this course. How well you understand and interpret the aesthetic elements from the readings, discussions and viewings, and your ability to apply that knowledge through analysis and criticism will ultimately determine your success in this course.

Weekly Lectures. Lectures are Password Protected. A link on the course home page will bring you to the lectures website. A password is required. The password is Moviemagic (capital M, the rest lower case), Like a weekly on-ground lecture, lectures take about 3 hours to read through not including study time. Each lecture has 15-23 web pages and should be studied thoroughly to pass the weekly quiz.

Online Quizzes

Quizzes correspond to an assigned lecture reading. The first quiz, Week 1-Introduction to Aesthetics, is open on the first day of class and can be taken multiple times for the best grade. All other quizzes can be taken only once. Study and take notes just like any other lecture. Each quiz has a specific due date in the course calendar (see page 4 and 5) when it will be turned off and no longer accessible. Quiz 2-11 will be open starting the second week but will close on the dates specified allowing those people who wish to move ahead to do so. Quizzes are listed by Week and Topic. When you sign on to take a quiz be sure to select the Quiz for that week. If you are unsure, check the course calendar in this syllabus.

Quizzes contain a mix of 20-25 multiple choice and true/false questions. Quizzes are timed. You may take the first quiz multiple times and all other quizzes, once. When you submit the quiz, you will get the grade but will NOT see the correct answers until the quiz is offline to all students. Once a quiz goes offline, it will not be re-opened.

Quiz Closing Dates-Quizzes have set closing dates every Sunday evening. Quizzes will not be reopened past the close date. It is advised that you don't wait until the closing date/time (Sundays @ 11:55pm) to take the quiz as if there's a problem, odds are tech support or I will not be able to resolve it in time.

Scene Analysis Essays

The most important aspect of media literacy, and what the lectures will prepare you for, is the ability to analyze media. The three Scene Analysis Essays on Photography, Mise en Scene and Editing will demonstrate your ability to analyze media and the techniques used to communicate meaning. Each analysis involves watching an entire film and finding it's theme(s); then analyzing a 2-4 minute scene that uses the aesthetic discussed in the assignment to best express meaning within that scene. The assignment sheet will clearly demonstrate how I expect the analysis organized, formatted and written with examples.

Final Research Paper

There will be a comprehensive Final Research Paper assigned around mid-semester. The research paper will be due during the final week of class.

A Note about Writing Quality

This is a 200-level communications course and therefore it is expected you are taking or have taken and passed English101 Composition. In your research and writing, you should strive for the highest quality. Spelling and grammar count and points will be deducted for each error. All essays and the final research paper must be well researched, properly formatted using MLA style, academically formal in tone and must use proper terminology when discussing aesthetics.

Online Technical Support

Blackboard Learn and Login MyCommnet support is available. Go to <http://mxcc.edu/distance> for information or <http://www.commmnet.edu/portal/help>. I can help with quiz issues (you lost an internet connection while taking the quiz) or content questions but cannot provide technical support. If you are unsure, don't hesitate to email me.

Some tips on taking on-line quizzes

- A solid Broadband Internet Connection will reduce potential problems. It's best to take quizzes from a computer hard wired to the Internet such as DSL, Cable or any computer at school.
- Don't take a quiz with a mobile device (phone, iPad, tablet). The technology is not supported.
- Quizzes are given in pop-up windows so please disable any pop-up blockers prior to taking the quiz as this is the #1 problem students have. In most browsers you can set an exception to pop up blocking so when you go to the blackboard domain it's recognized and the pop-up blocker gets turned off. Check with your browser's developer for more information.
- Close all open applications including email when taking quizzes.
- Quizzes are timed. Submit each answer and then submit the entire quiz at the end. You must submit the quiz for it to be recorded.
- I don't reopen quizzes past the due date though I can reset them during that week if there's a problem. If a quiz shuts down before being submitted I can check the quiz submittal history and may be able to hand grade it. When in doubt, please ask.
- Having a broken computer or losing power is no excuse for being unable to do course work. The computer you use doesn't have to be your computer. Any computer on or off campus will do. It's important to have a backup plan in the event your computer fails, power goes out, etc. Any backup plan should start with taking the quiz a day or two before it is due giving you enough time to implement the plan.
- The lowest quiz grade is dropped. This benefits those who miss a quiz, have technical problems or do poorly on a quiz.
- Important areas of information for study can often times be found highlighted in bold in the lectures.
